2024-26-26

NATIONAL AND KAPODISTRIAN
UNIVERSITY OF ATHENS

SCHOOL OF PHILOSOPHY

DEPARTMENT OF ENGLISH LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE

DEPARTMENT OF PHILOLOGY

DEPARTMENT OF RUSSIAN LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE AND SLAVIC STUDIES

Programme Information

Information Webinar

Open Q&A session for prospective applicants. Wednesday 10 June 2026, 11:30 to 12:30 (Athens time). Webex link: https://uoa.webex.com/uoa/j.php?MTID=m51ea6674e82a5d907fb4bd185b9205bc

Part of the joint CIVIS MA

The programme is part of the joint CIVIS MA. Students may spend one semester at a partner university of the CIVIS European Universities Alliance and have those courses recognised toward the MA.

HAHE-Accredited Study Programme

Accredited by the Hellenic Authority for Higher Education (HAHE) as a Certified Study Programme.

Flexible Delivery

Selected courses, seminars, lectures and workshops are offered in hybrid or fully online format. The MA dissertation defence may be conducted online.

INTERDEPARTMENTAL MA

TRANSLATION:
GREEK, ENGLISH, RUSSIAN
STUDY GUIDE

PREFACE

The Interdepartmental MA Programme (IMAP) "Translation: Greek, English, Russian" aims at training postgraduate students in translation between Greek, English and Russian, considering the special features of the three language systems, as well as the interaction of cultures, as manifested through translating various genres.

IMAP (ΔΠΜΣ) aims at utilizing the undergraduate background which the collaborating departments offer in order to broaden the cross-linguistic perspective of students towards languages and cultures which the collaborating departments do not offer in their undergraduate programmes, thus (a) creating more qualified translators and (b) developing the intercultural perspective of the departments, in the field of inter-cultural studies.

It addresses postgraduate students who have excellent grasp of all three languages, Greek, English and Russian, and further advances the study of language and of the message transfer techniques in translation practice.

The IMAP administration is run by a Steering Committee, authorized by the Special Interdepartmental Committee (SIC/ΕΔΕ). The programme grants a Master of Arts (MA) Degree in Translation, in Greek, English and Russian. The Department of English Language and Literature provides the secretarial support.

The Study Guide offers information about scientific profile, content of studies, and IMAP operation issues. The programme advances adapting to the experience of instructors and students. SIC/ΕΔΕ is responsible for constantly evaluating and overall assessing IMAP during and after its three-semester course (2024-2026).

The Steering Committee and the Special Interdepartmental Committee of the

"Translation: Greek, English, Russian" IMAP

COOPERATING DEPARTMENTS

DEPT. OF ENGLISH LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE (Responsible Department)	DEPT. OF PHILOLOGY http://www.phil.uoa.gr/	DEPT. OF RUSSIAN LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE AND SLAVIC STUDIES http://www.slavstud.uoa.gr/

http://www.enl.uoa.gr

STRUCTURE OF THE INTERDEPARTMENTAL COMMITTEE (SIC/ΕΔΕ)
DIRECTOR	Nikolaos Lavidas, Department of English Language and Literature
MEMBERS	Dionysis Goutsos, Department of Philology Spyridoula Bella, Department of Philology Tatiana Borisova, Department of Russian Language and Literature and Slavic Studies Elena Sartori, Department of Russian Language and Literature and Slavic Studies Olga Alexandropoulou, Department of Russian Language and Literature and Slavic Studies

STRUCTURE OF THE STEERING COMMITTEE (SC/ΣΕ)
HEAD	Nikolaos Lavidas, Dept of English Language and Literature
DEPUTY HEAD	Elly Ifantidou, Department of English Language and Literature
MEMBERS	Dionysis Goutsos, Department of Philology Spyridoula Bella, Department of Philology Tatiana Borisova, Department of Russian Language and Literature and Slavic Studies Elena Sartori, Department of Russian Language and Literature and Slavic Studies Olga Alexandropoulou, Department of Russian Language and Literature and Slavic Studies

REGISTRY	School of Philosophy, Office 411
	Spyros Fountas, Stella Karagianni Tel. 210-7277774, 210-7277454 E-mail: secr@enl.uoa.gr

HOMEPAGE	https://en.enl.uoa.gr/postgraduate_studies/interdepartmental_postgraduate_studies_programme_translation_greek_english_russian/

GENERAL INFORMATION

Founded

after publication of the 177/27-2-2020 Senate Decision of NKUA approving the Regulation of the Inter-departmental Postgraduate Programme of the Department of English Language and Literature entitled "Translation: Greek, English, Russian", (Government Gazzette) ΦΕΚ 776 Β΄2020 (Foundation), ΦΕΚ 744 Β' 2020 (Regulation) 10-3-2020 - *N. 4485/17, N. 4521/18.

Attending IMAP

IMAP addresses students who are fluent in all three working languages of the Programme, Greek, English, and Russian. It leads to a MA Degree after 3 semesters, including a Dissertation semester. The courses offered by the Department of Philology are taught in Greek, those offered by the Department of English Language and Literature are taught in English, and those offered by the Department of Russian Language and Literature and Slavic Studies in Russian.

Three (3) semesters is the maximum time for completing the programme. Students are entitled to make a written request for suspending studies or suspending the Dissertation preparation. SIC/ΕΔΕ may make the suspension decision, if the student presents the necessary supporting documents (e.g. of serious health condition). In case of a suspension decision, the student joins the respective semester of the next programme cycle, whenever it is run, and continues his/her studies. Suspension of studies can only be granted once. During the postponement period, the student status is removed and the skipped semester is not included in the estimated duration of studies.

The IMAP Degree requires ninety (90) credits (ECTS). The IMAP courses provide sixty (60) credits and the dissertation another thirty (30) credits.

Attendance is obligatory, students are required to successfully receive passing grades and conduct dissertation research, in the third semester of study.

IMAP Funding

The IMAP is funded by the University budget and the budget of the Ministry of Education, Religious Affairs and Sports, donations, provisions, legacies and any public and private sector donations, research projects and EU project resources, or by other international research organizations, part of the Special Account Research Grant resources of the University Institution or any other legitimate source.

Duration of IMAP operation

The IMAP 'Translation: Greek, English, Russian' has an operation potential of ten years. It will start in the academic year 2020-2021, for 5 years, and, provided that it meets the criteria of internal and external assessment, it will go on for another 5 years until the academic year 2029-2030, according to par. 8 of article 32 and par. 6 of article 44, law N.4485/2017.

Material and technical infrastructure of the Departments

- The Department of Linguistics of the Department of Philology has the necessary infrastructure, including a Laboratory of Phonetic and Computational Linguistics and a Laboratory of Psycholinguistics and Neurolinguistics. In addition, there is a teaching room available, with an interactive whiteboard, specifically designed for the needs of the postgraduate programme in linguistics.

- The Department of English Language and Literature has a Multimedia Laboratory for the Processing of Discourse and Text, a Centre for Self-Access Learning and Materials Development, the META-PHRASEIS Translation Studies and Interpretating Laboratory and the Bilingualism and Psycholinguistics Laboratory for educational and research activities.

- The Department of Russian Language and Literature and Slavic Studies also has its infrastructure, auditoriums, xerox machine, etc.

Central Library

IMAP postgraduates can borrow books (35.000 volumes) and consult scientific journals (250 magazine titles and 42 recorded subscriptions) after completing the relevant borrowing form. For more information please consult: http://www.lib.uoa.gr/

IMAP student provisions

Study Counsellor

The IMAP Steering Interdepartmental Committee (SIC) appoints a faculty member as a study counsellor/tutor to each one of the students, providing consultation opportunities in case a problem arises during studies. Postgraduates may consult tutors about academic activities they may plan or show interest in.

Space for co-operation and internet use

All IMAP students can use the computers provided in the laboratory rooms of the Departments and of the Library, as well as the cable internet connection in these particular rooms, in order to do their research and generally to meet the requirements of the IMAP.

E-class

IMAP students have access to the e-class platform on which instructors post educational material.

E-mail

IMAP students receive an e-mail address from the NKUA Computer Center. For the process of obtaining an e-mail address, please, contact the Secretariat of the Department of English Language and Literature (Room 411).

Conferences and seminars

The Departments organize various events, such as international conferences, seminars, lectures by important local or international scholars, artists and creators. Graduate students participate in these events for free. At the same time, they are encouraged to follow the scientific activities and developments in Greece and internationally and to participate in conferences and events.

Other amenities

Scholarship administration	YES	Please visit the following web page at the Department of English Language and Literature http://www.enl.uoa.gr/ypotrofies.html
Student ID	YES	Not compulsory by law, but provided as standard practice
Student transportation fee discount	YES	Provided by relevant legislative regulation and the Senate decision for the minimum study duration.
Health service booklet	YES	Same as above
Free meals	YES	Same as above
Coursebooks	NO	No free provision of coursebooks

Postgraduates are expected to elect 2 representatives who will represent them in the Department and Steering Interdepartmental Committee (SIC) meetings, according to article 2, law 3685/08. Attending the Special Interdepartmental Committee meetings is their obligation and right.

POSTGRADUATE STUDY PROGRAMME

1. Programme of Studies

Course List 2026-2028

The reception, translation and circulation of classical Russian literature in 20th-century Greek and Anglophone traditions. Comparative readings, translation choices, and cultural transfer. Assessment: research paper.

Instructor: O. Alexandropoulou

Greek and English Itineraries of Classical Russian Literature in the 20th Century

Diachronic, geographical and stylistic variation. Strategies for translating historical, dialectal and stylistically marked texts in the working languages. Assessment: research paper and weekly quizzes.

Instructor: N. Lavidas

Translation and Language Variation

Literacy practices and their consequences for translation. Writing systems, schooling traditions, multilingual literacy and emerging digital literacies shape what gets translated and how. Assessment: written paper.

Instructor: V. Intzidis

Literacies and Translation

An extended translation project between Greek and Russian under academic supervision: publication-ready translation, localisation or audiovisual adaptation, with reflective commentary on the translation choices. Assessment: collaborative translation project and individual commentary.

Instructor: E. Sartori

Practicum: Greek / Russian

An extended translation project between Greek and English under academic supervision: publication-ready translation, localisation or audiovisual adaptation, with reflective commentary on the translation choices. Assessment: collaborative translation project and individual commentary.

Instructor: N. Lavidas, M. Sidiropoulou

Practicum: Greek / English

Spring Semester

Comparative analysis of the three working languages: typology, syntax, morphology, lexicon. Strategies for translating between Russian, Greek and English, with an emphasis on typological divergences. Assessment: written paper and oral presentation.

Instructor: T. Borisova

Comparative Linguistic Approaches to Translation: Russian, Greek, English

The text as the primary unit of translation. Cohesion, coherence, discourse organisation, genre and register. Tools of textual analysis and their application to translation practice across the working languages. Assessment: written paper.

Instructor: D. Goutsos

Text Linguistics

A practical seminar on contemporary translation. Students engage with authentic translation assignments across a wide range of text genres, evaluate digital tools and post-editing workflows, and reflect critically on the translator's decisions. Assessment: portfolio and oral presentations.

Instructor: S. Kefala

Translation Seminar

The course introduces students to the methodological frameworks of contemporary research in translation studies. It covers the formulation of research questions, study design, qualitative and quantitative methods, data collection and analysis, and academic writing. Assessment: research proposal and assignments.

Instructor: M. Sidiropoulou

Research Methodology in Translation Studies

Winter Semester

Course Descriptions

Each semester offers a course pool from which students select three courses (10 ECTS each, 30 ECTS per semester). The third semester is dedicated to the MA Dissertation (30 ECTS).

Winter Semester

Research Methodology in Translation Studies

Instructor: M. Sidiropoulou, 10 ECTS

Translation Seminar

Instructor: S. Kefala, 10 ECTS

Text Linguistics

Instructor: D. Goutsos, 10 ECTS

Comparative Linguistic Approaches to Translation: Russian, Greek, English

Instructor: T. Borisova, 10 ECTS

Spring Semester

Practicum: Greek / English

Instructor: N. Lavidas, M. Sidiropoulou, 10 ECTS

Practicum: Greek / Russian

Instructor: E. Sartori, 10 ECTS

Literacies and Translation

Instructor: V. Intzidis, 10 ECTS

Translation and Language Variation

Instructor: N. Lavidas, 10 ECTS

Greek and English Itineraries of Classical Russian Literature in the 20th Century

Instructor: O. Alexandropoulou, 10 ECTS

Third Semester

MA Dissertation (30 ECTS).

2. Entrance to the programme

Student selection is based on Law 4485/2017 and on current Postgraduate Programme Regulations.

A) Invitation - Requirements and necessary supporting documentation

Following a SIC/ΕΔΕ decision, an invitation is published on the website of the Department(s) yearly, in May-June for all students interested in attending IMAP.

Submission of applications

All prospective students need to submit the following documentation:

- An application form (application form available online at https://www.enl.uoa.gr/ilektronikes_ypiresies/ilektronika_entypa).
- A full CV (please fill in the special form available online at https://www.enl.uoa.gr/ilektronikes_ypiresies/ilektronika_entypa).
  In cases of disability, also provide relevant certificate from the Primary Health Committee.
- A scanned photocopy of their identity card or passport.
- A scanned copy of the BA degree or a study completion attestation by the Secretariat of the Department.
- Scanned copies of other related higher education qualifications.
- Full record of university course grades.
- Two recommendation letters in a special form (available online at the website of the Department: https://www.enl.uoa.gr/ilektronikes_ypiresies/ilektronika_entypa) by the candidates' instructors in undergraduate or postgraduate courses. Alternatively, one letter of recommendation may come from an employer of related employment. Letters of recommendation will be submitted directly by the Professors (and the employer, as above) with a digital signature at the link: https://forms.gle/4nWaF25mrgeqQeKH9
- Academic publications, if any.
- Evidence of professional or research activity, if any.
- Certification of knowledge of English (C2 level "excellent knowledge") for graduates from other departments than the departments of English Language and Literature.
- Scanned copies of certificates of knowledge of other languages (other than Greek and English), if available.
- Additional research or literature review papers, relevant to the MA, which have been graded in the context of undergraduate or postgraduate studies related to the respective specialization of the MA.

Application and documentation legality is examined by the Secretariat and the Steering Committee. Candidates who are deemed as eligible under law and the Postgraduate Studies Regulation will be invited to the written examination.

B) Criteria for candidate selection

1. Success in the written exam (pass mark: 6/10) and the performance of the candidates in the written exam (70% of the total marks). The examination syllabus is announced in the Study Guide uploaded on the Faculty's website during the application period of new postgraduate students.
2. The performance of the candidates in the oral exam (pass mark: 6/10; 30% of the total marks), with questions on the examination syllabus, in which those who pass the written examination participate.
3. BA grade "Very Good". A lower grade may be accepted if candidates have a "Very Good" grade in courses or a BA dissertation relevant to the Postgraduate Program, or if they have acquired a second degree, another postgraduate title, research experience or have written a detailed research paper.
4. The following qualifications are taken into account with respect to the final mark of the oral examination (5% of the oral examination mark):

a. Grades of undergraduate courses relevant to postgraduate specialization.
b. Experience with scientific projects relevant to the postgraduate programme (e.g. seminars, participation in research projects, publications, etc.).
c. Excellent knowledge of English, Greek and Russian is mandatory. Good knowledge of other languages is appreciated;
d. Recommendation letters;
e. Relevant professional experience and knowledge of new technologies.

The Steering Committee suggests a list of selected candidates on the basis of the above criteria and submits it to the SIC Assembly for approval. Candidates with the same passing grade are accepted to the programme. The final list of successful candidates is published on the official webpage of the Department(s). Accepted candidates register within a 10 days' time period, from the date of the assembly meeting which approved the suggested list of candidates.

Programme completion requires collecting ninety (90) ECTS.

The Regulation of the MA Programme suggests that if students fail one or more courses, they may fail the whole Programme; the student should then ask to be examined by a three-party committee, whose members have the same or relevant specialization and who are selected by the Department Assembly The instructor is excluded from the three-party exam committee (par. 6, art. 34, N. 4485/2017). If the student is examined through a written assignment, the assignment is assessed by the three-party exam committee.

The Dissertation is written in the 3rd and last semester of the Programme. The student submits an application with a recommended title and a recommended supervisor, with an abstract of the recommended assignment attached. The Steering Committee assigns the student a supervisor, and upon completion of the dissertation, it forms a three-member examining committee (including the supervisor) for its approval. Candidates orally support their dissertation in front of the examining committee.

All instructors of the MA Programme can be supervisors or members of the three-party examining committees (see article 10 of the Regulation about the anticipated by the Law categories of instructors).

Postgraduate dissertation

Successful completion of the Programme includes submission of a Dissertation (at the end of the 3rd semester of studies) within the suggested deadline to be set by the Steering Committee. The language of the postgraduate Dissertation is Greek, English or Russian.

Students chose their topic from a pool of broad thematic areas that are recommended by the instructors and come up with a specific title, an abstract of the recommended assignment and a recommended supervisor, according to the procedure described above. The topic of the Dissertation should be original and have a research orientation.

The dissertation, which holds 30 ECTS, should conform to the criteria below, according to which it will be assessed: it should

- be original
- between 15.000-20.000 words
- focus on the topic as already described in the abstract
- be organized according to the academic essay standards
- display accuracy and content clarity
- display the student's ability to think critically
- be a proof of the students' broader understanding of the research area the dissertation topic falls into, and the input of a more specific theme in them
- have enough citations in the text. The reference list at the end should be presented according to the international standards.

Candidates follow instructions regarding the form of the dissertation (suggested cover and form guidelines can be found in the Registry of IMAP).

The dissertation is submitted in three copies - one for the supervisor and one for each one of the two other members of the exam committee - to the registry, within the deadline set at the start of the 3rd semester.

Please note that

- Assignments that miss or surpass the suggested word limit range are not accepted.
- There can be no extension to the dissertation submission deadline, unless there are serious medical reasons (and only if medical documents are submitted).
- plagiarism is a sufficient condition for a student to be crossed out from the MA programme.

For approval of the dissertation students orally supports it in front of the examining committee. The final grade of the dissertation is an average of the assessment mark suggested by the three members of the examining committee. If the dissertation is assumed non-satisfactory, or if the examiners think that the dissertation needs improvement, they can ask for it, or suggest an overall reconstruction within the period of 1 month.

The grade of the dissertation is submitted to the Registry of the Department when the marking procedure is completed. The student resubmits the dissertation (with the improvements) in its final form in one copy. Dissertation titles are necessarily posted on the website of the Department. After approval by the examining committee, an electronic submission of dissertations follows at the Digit Depository "PERGAMOS", on Senate decision.

4. MA student rights and obligations

1. MA students are entitled to the same rights and amenities as first-degree students, except for the right to free textbooks. The Department ensures access to textbooks and lectures for disabled students and/or students with other special needs. The NKUA Accessibility Unit also allows for student facilities (remote communication with fellow students, professors and administrative staff of the Institution), workstations at the library, provision of accessibility tools, etc.

2. All MA students are free to use the computers of the Multimedia Laboratory, the Self-Access Learning Centre and of the Library of the School. Students are also provided with an institutional e-mail address from the NKUA Computational Centre.

3. MA students attend seminars, lectures, discussions on new bibliographical information, educational visits, conferences, colloquia and other scientific events related to the MA topic, hosted by the Departments and other bodies.

4. Every student is assigned a Study Consultant who is selected among the instructors of the IMAP. Consultants closely monitor the students' progress, notifying instructors, should any problem arise.

5. The Steering Interdepartmental Committee may decide to discontinue a student's attendance if

- their attendance is poor (only two justified absences are allowed per course for medical reasons, as specified in article 7 of the Regulation)
- they have failed the examination of a module/modules (including the examination by the three-member Committee) and have not completed the programme
- they exceed the maximum study duration
- they break existing regulations according to the relevant Disciplinary Board code
- ex officio, after an application to the Department
- if they commit a plagiarism misconduct, for violating the intellectual property law when writing a paper (Law 2121/93).

More specifically: Plagiarism is the intentional or unintentional verbatim or paraphrased copying of parts of a text (irrespective of their size) from any print source (e.g. articles, books, newspapers, magazines, other students' papers) or online source, without a full bibliographical reference to the source. Any third-party interference to the content or the structure of a paper (with no relevant reference) or the assigning of a paper for writing by a third party is also considered plagiarism. Plagiarism is a serious misconduct of academic ethics and leads to sanctions which, depending on the severity of the misconduct (to be determined by SIC), may vary from the student receiving a failing mark for the paper, failing the course or permanently leaving the MA programme. This applies for papers of particular courses and MA dissertations.

6. At the end of each semester, MA students are asked to assess each module and instructor. Furthermore, students are asked to assess the programme as a whole, at the end. Module assessments are done through special digital questionnaires. The results of the overall assessment are published on the website of the Department and/or IMAP.

7. To obtain the Postgraduate Studies Degree (PSD), students need to pass all modules of both semesters as well as get a passing grade at their MA dissertation oral support. The final grade of the PSD can be Excellent: Grades 10-09, Very Good: Grades 08-07, Good: Grade 06.

The graduation ceremony takes place during Assembly meetings of the Department of English Language and Literature at the University premises, in the presence of the Director or the Deputy Director of the MA programme, the Head of the Department or the Deputy Head of the Department and, if possible, a representative of the Dean of the School of Philosophy.

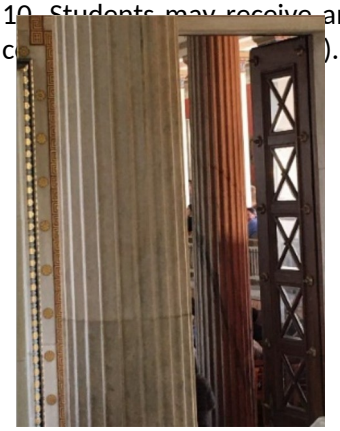
Graduates of IMAP are granted a Postgraduate Studies Degree in

“Translation: Greek, English, Russian”

8. Foreign MA students who have not had their first cycle of studies recognized by the Δ.Ο.Α.Τ.Α.Π. centre according to Law 3328/2005 (A' 80), during the duration of their studies, will not be eligible to receive a Degree.

9. MA students may apply for a MA Supplement to be issued by the Registry of IMAP.

10. Students may receive an [illegible] ipation in courses of parallel MA courses upon c[illegible]).



DESCRIPTION OF COURSES

TRANSLATION: GREEK, ENGLISH, RUSSIAN (2026-28)

Research methodology in translation studies

This course examines the research methodology in translation studies. It focuses on types of research (comparison of original and translated discourse: parallel or comparable, quality/quantity approaches), on the types and usefulness of the theoretical models, on setting up hypotheses (up to the point of their verification or falsification), on the relation between variables of the translation context (how some variables can affect both translation outcome and research), on data collection and analysis (representativeness, random sampling, categorizing findings and drawing conclusions).

It also focuses on the writing of the research report and its oral presentation (structure, writing conventions etc.), on self-/evaluating the research on the basis of certain criteria that establish credibility and a proper academic style, and on presenting potential weak points of the research. Assessment is achieved through (a) writing and presenting a research paper and (b) the intermediary individual projects that contribute to the course outcome. Students need to consult a broad range of research sources, for selecting their research project, critically presenting the relevant bibliography, suggesting the research plan and drawing conclusions on the basis of data processing. The presentation of the research paper might take place in front of an audience broader than the postgraduate team, and the students are expected to attend and creatively contribute their critical point of view.

Instructor: Dr. Maria Sidiropoulou

Language Contact

...

Instructor: Dr. Thanassis Giannaris

Comparative linguistic approaches to translation: Russian, Greek, English

The aim of the course is to introduce students to the subject of Comparative Linguistics and to familiarize them with its basic concepts, methods and problems, as well as to apply this theoretical knowledge to the comparative description of Greek, Russian and English languages and to the practice of translation. The analysis of the similarities and differences between the three languages on the basis of modern linguistic theories aims at systematizing the students' interlingual knowledge in order to address various translation problems and to formulate a scientific approach to the practice of translation.

Instructor: Dr. Tatiana Borisova.

Issues in sociolinguistics - with emphasis on literacy

The course intends to problematize issues in sociolinguistics and literacy, which are key areas in the theory and practice of the discipline. It also emphasizes methodological issues arising in research practice. The course focuses on describing and tracing time-/place-specific literacy incidents, in the public and private sphere, in society and civil society, through specific sociolinguistic perspectives and meaning-negotiating practices. The course is embedded in the field of new literacy studies, makes use of systemic functional grammar, critical discourse analysis approaches and concepts of critical theory, in order to advance understanding of a hermeneutically strategic language use, on the basis of social structures (a social turn in the study of communication) and the characterizations attributed to subjects in relation to their levels of literacy and linguistic policies. Assessment is done through class presentations and a final assignment.

Instructor: Evangelos Intzidis.

Practicum (English - Greek)

The course helps trainees advance understanding of the way interlingual transfer operates, especially when translators are well aware of variation between the languages and cultures which meet each other through translation. Emphasis is placed on searching for appropriate resources, for clarifying concepts and on the whole editorial experience of a translation project. In addition to translation practice, the course invites external (and internal) speakers to offer seminars which broaden students' translation perspective and perception of translator role, in various genres and in genres different from the ones dealt with in the present practicum. Postgraduate students have the opportunity to expose themselves to cloud-related translation technologies and to more specific topics, in view of the imminent 3rd semester of the programme of studies, computational applications and parallel translation corpora.

Instructor: Dr. Maria Sidiropoulou, Dr. Nikolaos Lavidas, Dr. Anna Hatzidaki, Dr. Diamantoula Korda, Dr. Effrosyni Fragkou.

Practicum (Russian - Greek)

The course applies theoretical aspects of translation studies, which postgraduates were exposed to, in their first semester of studies, onto translation practice, to and from the Russian language. Through various genres, the course highlights how informative, expressive, directive aspects of the message are to be handled in intercultural transfer and confirms that translation practice requires knowledge and skills which extend beyond the linguistic regime.

Postgraduates analyze original texts which they transfer in a target language taking into consideration cultural and discoursal conventions, linguistic and ideological attitudes which the reception environment favours, and potentially ethical considerations involved in renegotiating the message. Assessment is done through weekly deliverables, presentations and a final assignment.

Instructor: Dr. Elena Sartori.

The Library of the School of Philosophy

The Zographou Campus, National and Kapodistrian University of Athens

[INTERDEPARTMENTAL MA]
Translation: Greek, English, Russian 2026-28
STUDY GUIDE